More, grander and better buildings

The Nordic meeting place for those interested in wood built structures and environments

Like its mother conference in Garmisch Partenkirchen, Forum Holzbau Nordic will be an important meeting place. Key industry actors will meet and get updated on the latest developments within production and research. They will gather new knowledge acquired from a variety of projects across the world.

We believe a successful conference requires participants from the whole process, from the creative idea phase to the finished building. Trondheim is ideally placed – the home to Norway's most advanced scientific research and innovative milieus. The town has a series of fine examples of traditional and innovative wooden building projects. It also houses a multitude of manufactures producing a great variety of building products. Trondheim's handicraft traditions are also long and rich.

Participation is expected from all the Nordic countries and from Central Europe. The conference accepts a total of 35 exhibitors. This offers a unique opportunity to network and exchange ideas, experiences and knowledge with key firms from a large part of Europe.

The program will encompass a wide range of lectures with topics covering local development, architecture, research and innovation, handy craft and education. There will also be opportunities to follow excursions and short walks to see specific projects, whether you are interested in innovative solutions, the repair of old buildings or the use of wood in townscape art productions.
